HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

Fred Gillilan had a shock Saturday at his home in Barre and died the next day. He was only 35 years old.

Joe Randall of Lyndonville was badly poisoned recently by a mosquito bite, which caused the arm to swell and necessitated bandaging.

The heat has been so severe this week that the Black Cat Textile company and the E. Z. Waist company in Bennington shut down afternoons.

Morrisville coal dealers, who received several carloads of coal last week, soon disposed of the entire stock at a price of about $9.50 per gross ton.

George E. Fowler has installed a pair of stuffed cats among the pea vines at his home in Johnson to frighten birds, which have been helping themselves to the peas.

During the severe storm of Monday evening, Mrs. George House of Beebe, while on her way home from the postoffice, was struck by a falling limb from a tree, killing her instantly.

While John Arthur was mowing with a scythe on a steep bank in West Glover, he stumbled and fell onto the scythe, cutting one finger entirely off and the bone of another, besides sustaining some bruises.

Joseph Garreau, proprietor of "The Pines" at Bennington, was badly hurt when an auto in which he and a young man in his employ were riding collided with a tree Tuesday. Garreau's head was cut open in several places, but he was cut on one arm and the other was black with bruises.

Following the extremely hot weather of Monday, Lyndonville was treated to a severe wind and rain storm, which broke off branches of trees and stripped from the rope the big flag owned by Lyndonville Republicans, which hung across the street. At last reports the flag had not been found.

Tiscumtum has been discovered in the ground in Burlington and vicinity, where large acreages of field beans have been planted, which will mean a loss of hundreds of dollars to farmers. So far no method has been found for its prevention or cure. The rust eats up the roots of the plants, but sometimes new roots sprout out over the destroyed ones.

Stanley C. Fitts of Brattleboro, who is transporting ammunition by automobile for the allies in France, has written to his mother that he will go Aug. 10 to a French officers' training school, which will give him the rank of lieutenant in the French army. He says college work for him will have to be postponed or given up, for he shall not return to college while a million other Americans are in Europe fighting.

W. E. Harrigan, a driver for the American Express company in St. Johnsbury, suffered severe internal injuries Tuesday afternoon when a front wheel came off the wagon, throwing him out, and the hind wheel of the heavily loaded wagon passed over him after he had been dragged some distance by the running horse.

The old Smith homestead in Stowe has been in the family for 50 years. It was formerly the property of Captain Nathan Robinson, for many years a prominent resident of Stowe. Mr. Robinson's father, Nathan Robinson, purchased the place in 1798, paying for it $1,000 in silver, which he brought to Stowe in a barrel of beans. Mr. Robinson kept a hotel for many years in the house, which was of logs, one story high, with two rooms on the ground floor. Later a frame house was built on the same site. The house now contains many rare books, pieces of carved mahogany and other art treasures.

July Weather.
William A. Shaw, meteorologist in charge of the Northfield station of the United States weather bureau, reports a mean temperature for July of 68 degrees, which is one degree above the normal July temperature in Northfield. The highest was 94 degrees, on the 30th, and the lowest was 43 degrees, on the 5th. The greatest daily range was 38 degrees, on the 7th, and the least daily range was nine degrees, on the 11th. The precipitation amounted to 3.08 inches, the normal for the month being 3.70 inches. The prevailing wind was from the south, the total movement 4,126 miles, the average hourly velocity 5.5 miles, and the maximum velocity 36 miles per hour, from the northeast on the 23d. The month was made up of two clear, 22 partly cloudy, and seven cloudy days. Precipitation in quantity sufficient to measure occurred on 13 days. Fog was noted on the 18th and 23d, and thunderstorms occurred on ten days.

No Man Should Excuse His Wife's Temper.

In an article in the August Woman's Home Companion, a writer says:
"I have seen, especially among the leisure class, capricious and ill-tempered women whose husbands lived in constant dread of a scene of some sort. There, poor, down-trodden men spent their days in placating their wives, in side-stepping tempers and tears with humiliating nimbleness, or in exercising a patient kindness less degrading to them and deeply touching to all spectators. Such men are always pitted by the whole community in which they live, but this pity is a subtle form of contempt. The sympathetic community feels that side-stepping a wife's moods is a poor way for a live man to be spending his days."
"When, however, a man blights the life of his household in a similar way, the commiseration which his wife receives is small, especially if he happens to be that which is so aptly termed 'a good provider.' In fact, the feeling of the community is that it is a 'woman's business' to make her home livable."

GEN. W. C. GORGAS

PLEASED WITH CAMP

Inspected Conditions at Fort Ethan Allen, Ate with Men and Viewed the Camp Equipment Minutely.

Burlington, Aug. 3.—General William C. Gorgas and party, Col. C. DeVeale, French army, Major C. L. Furbush, medical corps, U. S. A. and Major W. H. Welch, medical corps, U. S. A., of Johns Hopkins University, inspected the camp at Fort Ethan Allen yesterday and the eminent surgeon and officer expressed himself as highly satisfied with the general appearance and sanitary condition of everything connected with it. This statement coming from one of the highest officials of the United States army, from a person who has made it his life work to study camp conditions, is prized by the officers at Fort Ethan Allen and is considered to be praise of the highest order for Vermont troops and Vermont headquarters.

The sight of a major general of the United States army, the highest medical officer in America, a man to whom the world owes the fact of the greatest engineering feat in history being made possible through his skill in freeing Panama from yellow fever, wounding in action in Europe, eating their dinner out of a private soldier's tin mess kit, is not often seen.

General Gorgas, surgeon general of the United States army, and Colonel DeVeale of the French army, however, could not see anything but "being with the boys" yesterday while they were inspecting Fort Ethan Allen and so the luncheon which had been prepared for them and their companions never came out of the kitchen and instead the general, who is 63 years old, sat down at the rough wooden tables of the mess shack of the medical corps and handed over his tin plate and cup like the privates gathered around him. The cooks hadn't prepared for such distinguished guests, but the general and his party did full justice to the roast beef, potatoes, beans and coffee and voted the dinner the best ever.

The general was very particular in his inspection of the camp, in many cases going into the tents of the men and even examining the bedding. The mounts of the cavalry came in for a minute examination. The party also visited the post hospital. Especial attention was paid to the sanitary condition of the headquarters for the sick.

Major General Gorgas stated that the sanitary condition of the hospital, kitchen, sleeping headquarters, and recreation buildings for the soldiers was of the highest order and ranked favorably with other camps throughout the country.

MODIFIED HIS TESTIMONY.

John E. Deyette Thought His Wife Merely Wanted to Have Him Hurt.

Burlington, Aug. 3.—"Do you want me to believe that your wife tried to persuade Rose Willets to kill you?" John E. Deyette was asked on the witness stand yesterday by A. L. Sherman, attorney for Mrs. Deyette in the double divorce suit now on in Chittenden county court.

"Yes, I most certainly do," responded the witness.

He then modified his testimony to the effect that he thought she wanted to hurt him, instead of to kill him.

Dr. B. A. Bombard was put on by the attorneys for Mr. Deyette to testify as to his examination of certain black and blue marks found on the body of little Eugene, the Deyette child, over whom all the trouble is about.

Dr. Bombard said he was called in January and July of this year by Mr. Deyette to inspect the marks and bruises on the child, which were alleged to be there.

It was intimated by counsel for the husband and father of the child that the marks were made by the little girl's mother in a brutal way. The physician testified that he found marks on the hips, on his visit in January, and marks on the back on the second trip in July. He admitted on cross examination, that the marks might have been made by falls.

Eugene Luck, a member of the board of aldermen, who occupied a camp at Malletts Bay adjacent to that of the Deyettes in the fall of 1910, just before the shooting, testified to visits to the Deyette camp of the two young men, referred to in Mrs. Deyette's testimony earlier in the hearing. He said that Mrs. Deyette and her sister, Rose Willets, often, during the time they were camping, went out in a boat with the two

NEEDLESS JOY RIDING.

This country is consuming crude petroleum at the rate of 335,000,000 barrels a year, and as the annual product is now only 300,000,000 barrels, the reserve surplus is being exhausted. Production must increase or consumption must decrease. As the possibility of the former is regarded as doubtful, the latter appears to be a necessity. Therefore the advisory commission of the Council of National Defense, realizing the need of conservation, has issued the following warning: "Refrain from needless joy-riding."

NEEDLESS JOY RIDING.

Peeps should look upon their automobiles as necessities, to be used only when needed. Not a gallon of gasoline should be used in the present emergency except for some useful end.

Many thousands of Americans, in response to Mr. Hoover's appeal, are now using less than four than formerly. This is a hardy task than the setting down of the consumption of gasoline by curtailing mere pleasure riding, for all over the country, the sure riding is done to excess. All necessary uses of the automobile could continue, even regular family pleasure outings might not be interrupted, and still the consumption of gasoline could be greatly cut down if excessive and needless joy-riding could be checked.

There are thousands of car owners who are unwilling to stretch their legs in order to do an errand two or three squares away. There are hundreds of thousands of young folk who joy-ride the whole evening throughout the open season. A vast saving could be accomplished without hardship to anyone, and even with benefit as a result of variation in amusement, if the victims of immediate joy-riding could be induced to heed the appeal.—Western (R. L.) Sun.
